DRIVE TIME

Continuing the engine assembly for your DeLorean.

In this issue you will be adding pulleys and belts to the engine by following these step-by-step instructions.

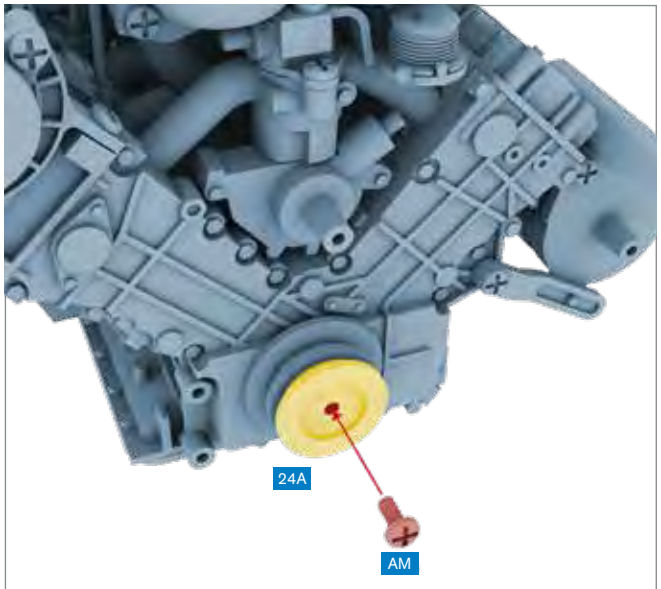

ASSEMBLING THE ENGINE

STEP 1 ›› Place 24C onto the post at the bottom of the rear of the engine.

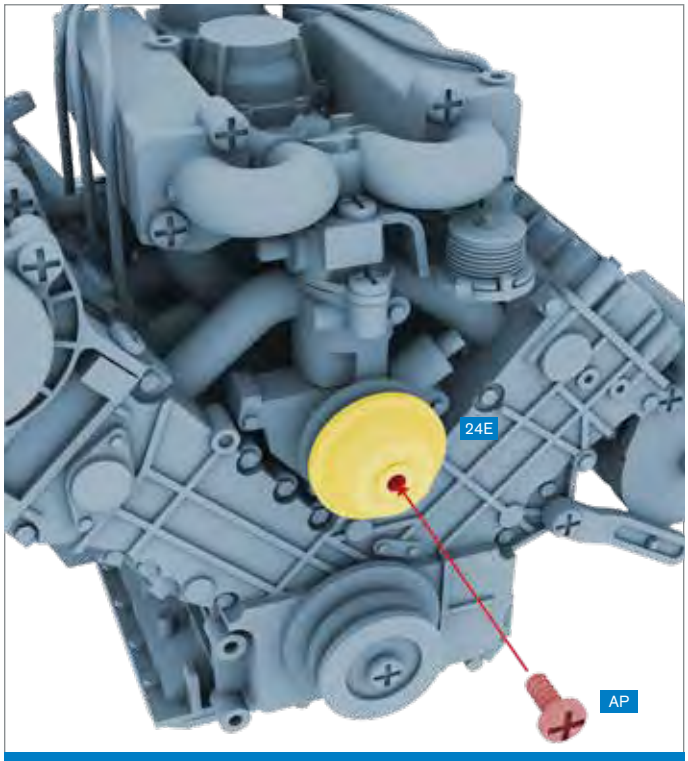

STEP 2 ›› Place 24B onto the post, up against 24C.

STEP 3 ›› Place 24A onto the post, then secure the three sections of the pulley to the engine with an AM screw.

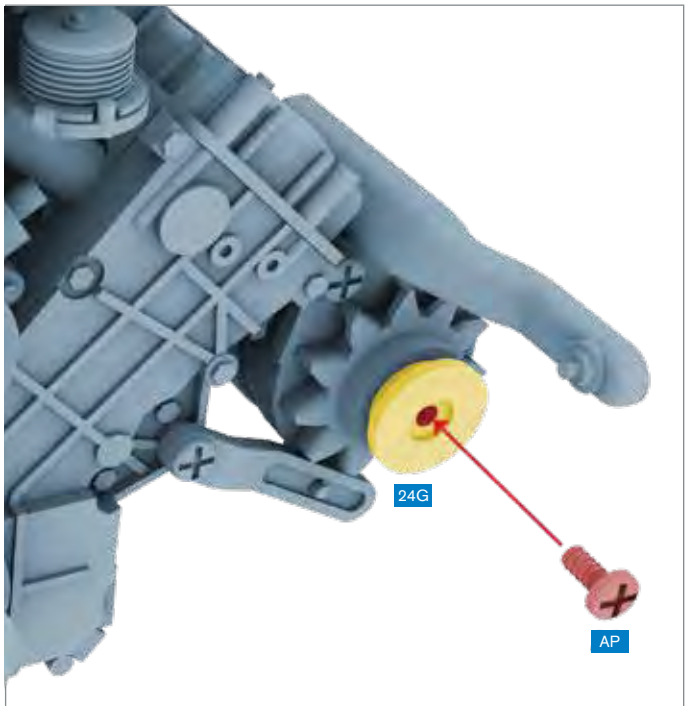

STEP 4 ›› Place part 24D onto the post above, as shown.

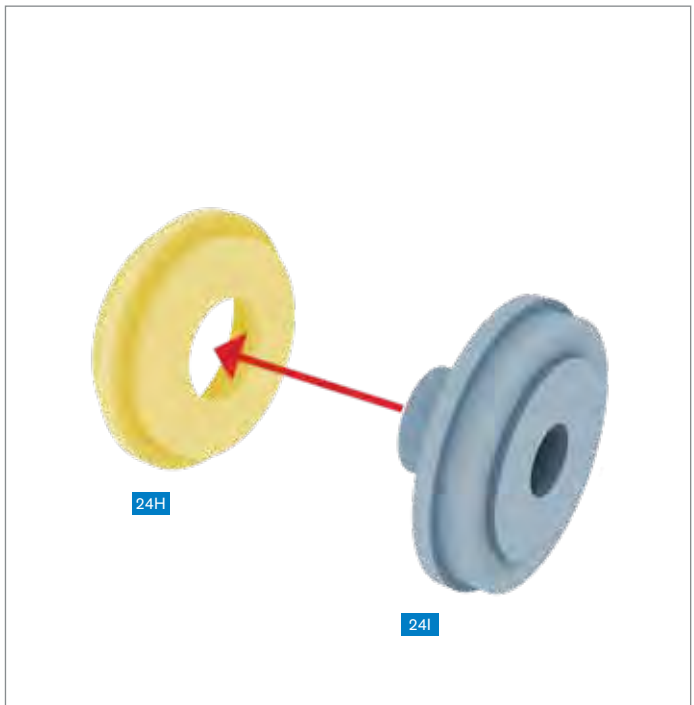

STEP 5 ›› Place 24E onto the post, up against 24D, and fix in place with an AP screw.

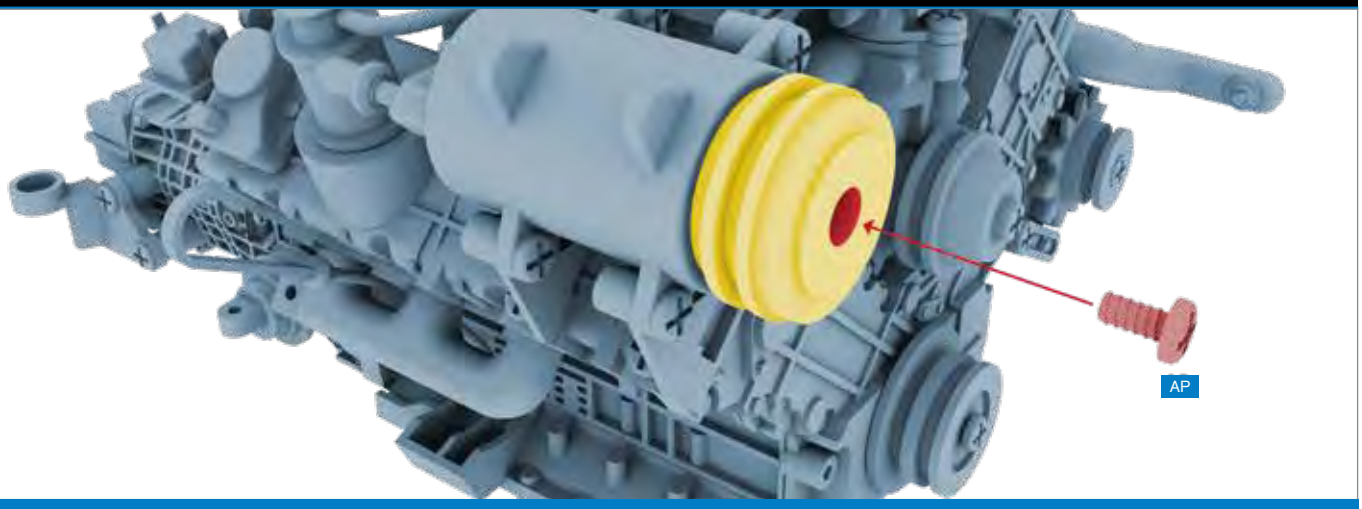

STEP 6 ›› Place 24F onto the post at the rear of the alternator, as shown.

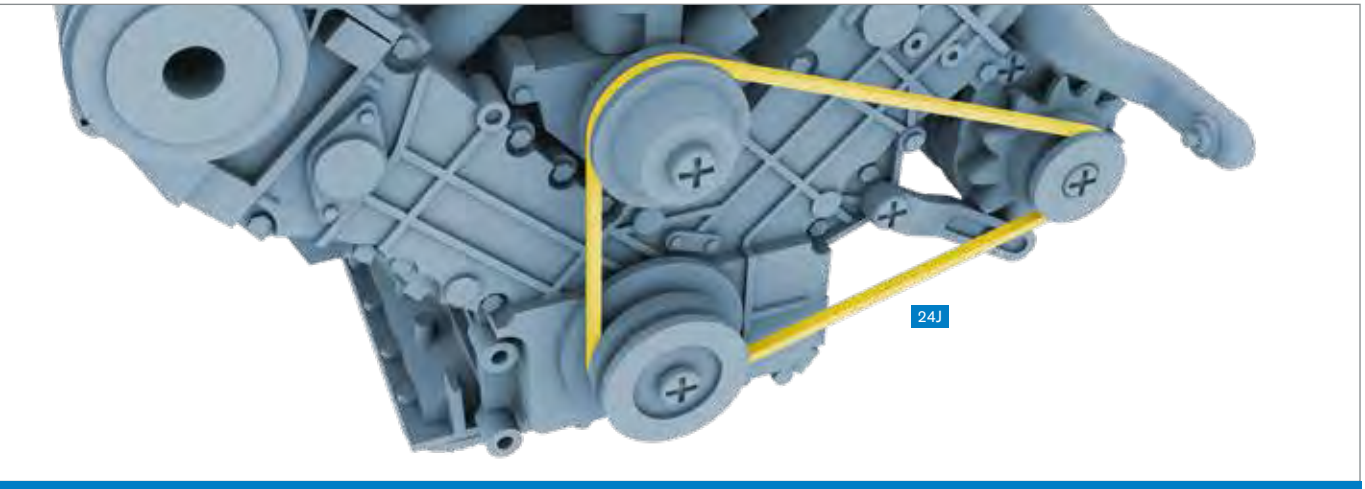

STEP 7 ›› Place part 24G up against 24F, and secure with an AP screw.

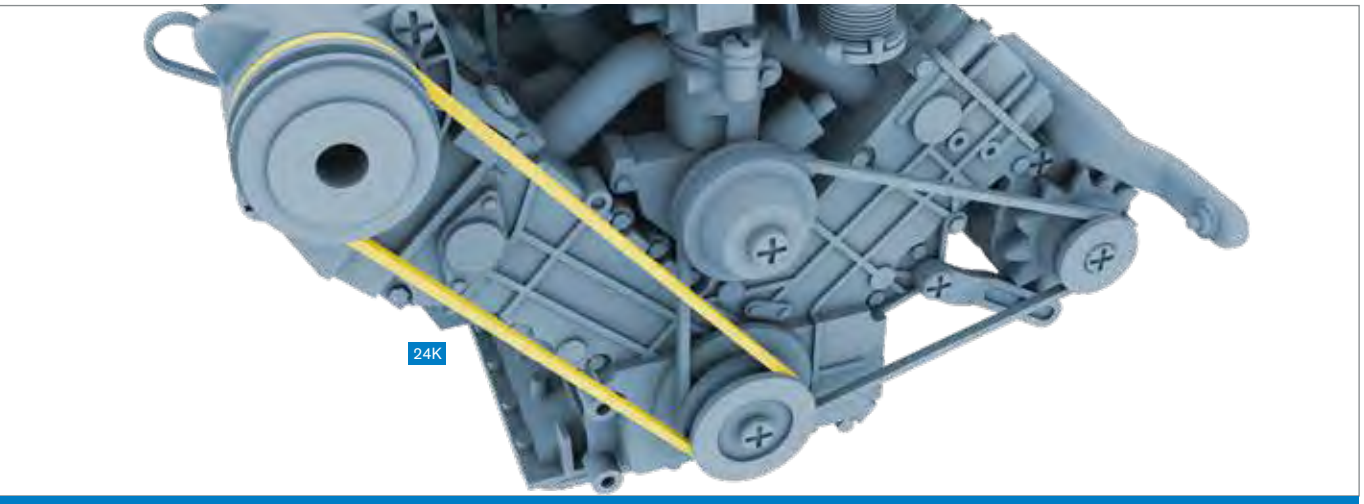

STEP 8 ›› Combine parts 24H and 24I.

STEP 9 ›› Place the A/C pulley assembly on the rear of the A/C compressor and secure with an AP screw.

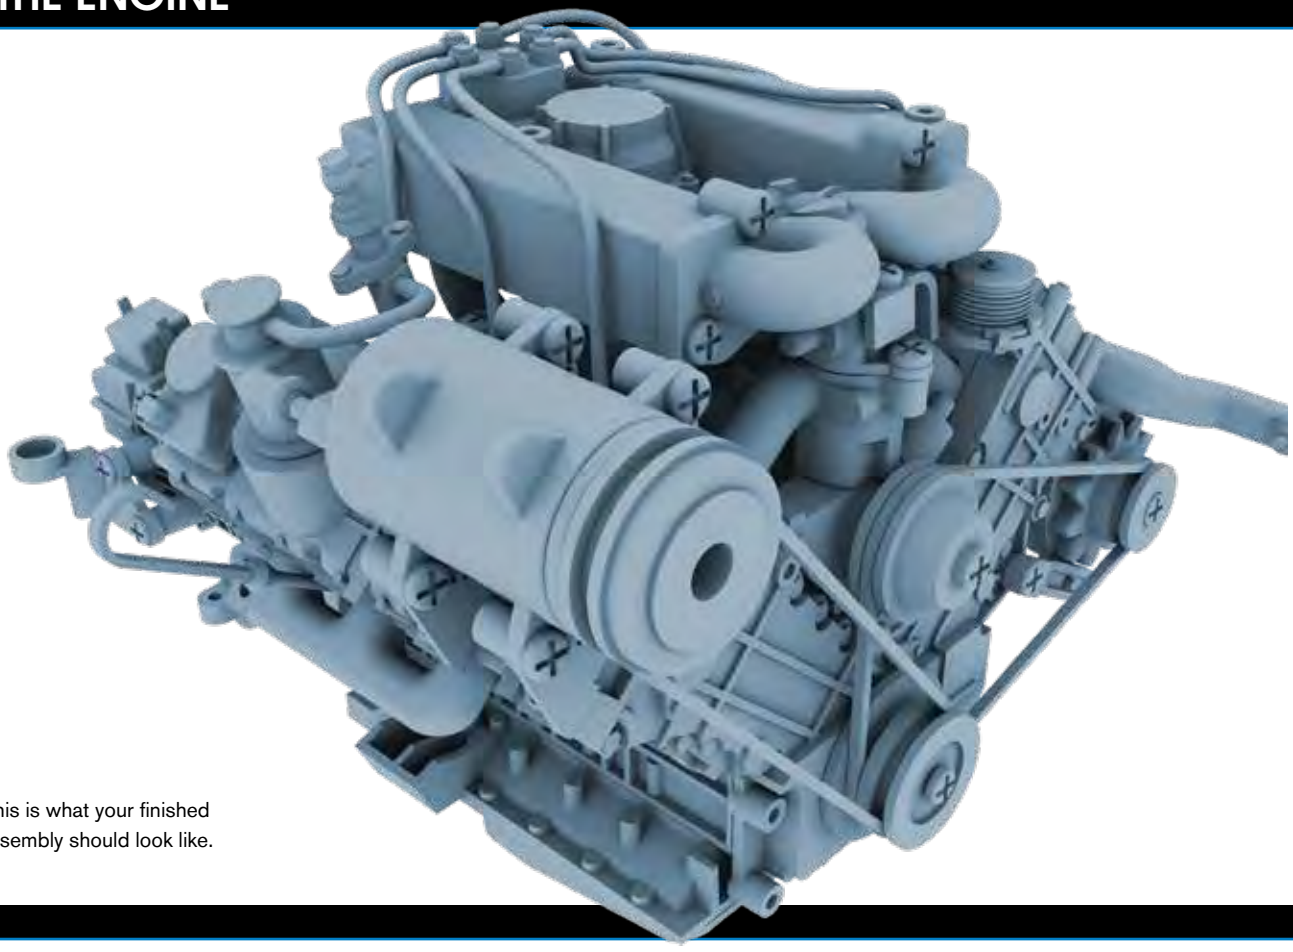

STEP 10 ›› Place the alternator belt (24J) in the recesses of the three pulleys, as shown above.

STEP 11 ›› Place the A/C belt (24K) over the two recesses in the pulleys shown.

THE ENGINE

This is what your finished assembly should look like.

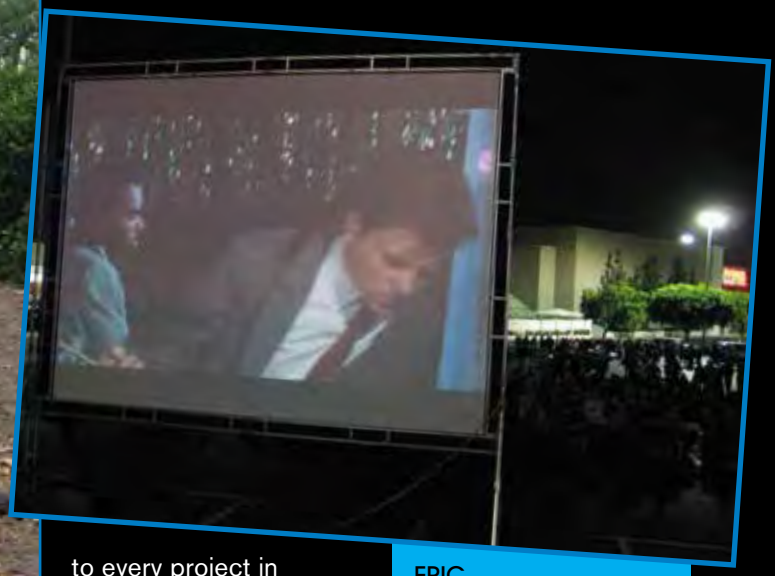

WE'RE GOING BACK!

PART I

Joe Walser looks back at the amazing, immersive Back to the Future fan celebration for the film's 25th anniversary.

EPIC

As the year 2010 approached, fans of Back to the Future from all over the world were eager to celebrate the 25th Anniversary of the iconic trilogy. Unfortunately, nothing official was being planned, at least nothing for the fans. If there was going to be an epic, immersive, amazing Back to the Future fan celebration, one thing was clear; the fans were just going to have to roll up their sleeves, put their minds to it and make it happen themselves.

"We should do it," my friend Ken Kapalowski suggested to me. He'd barely said the words and we were off to the races. 'We're Going Back!' started as our slogan, but quickly became the official name of what was to become the biggest fan-created Back to the Future celebration, ever.

The odds were stacked against us, just a couple of average Ken-and-Joes. But, as Ken will tell you, I'm known for bringing a certain intensity to every project in which I'm involved. To me, everything should always be done right and be a spectacle, even if you're having fun, it should be as authentic as possible. If it's worth doing at all, it's worth doing right – right? And if we only have one shot at this, let's shoot for the moon.

There would be no trial run, just several months of intense work and a massive amount of risk – but there was also the potential for a lot of people to have a really good time, and an experience that they would never forget.

IN MARTY'S FOOTSTEPS

If the odds were against us, what drove us on was the knowledge that thousands of fans wanted the exact same thing. We needed a plan, so we set out to impress ourselves. What if everyone actually spent the same week in 1955 as Marty McFly did in the movie? Walk in his footsteps and go everywhere he went… what if fans literally experienced what Marty experienced? Now, we were hooked by our own pitch. All we had to do was pack a whopping seven days with epic fun and activities for thousands. No problem!

BACK TO THE MALL

We started right off by thrusting everyone straight into the action. The celebration would begin with a recreation of Marty being chased by the Libyans, timed to an open-air screening of Back to the Future in the actual parking lot where it all happened, the Twin Pines Mall (otherwise known as Puente Hills Mall, City of Industry).

As Doc said "What is it, Einey?" in the film, the fans weren't expecting to see the Libyans speeding toward them – headlights blazing, chasing the DeLorean across the parking lot. It was actually happening, and it was amazing! From there, the whole event was just gravy. We had successfully blown people's minds and given fans the Back to the Future playground they'd always wanted.

The next day, we took a tour around many of the movie's locations, including the gym where the Pinheads' Battle of the Bands was filmed, with a collection of original props and memorabilia on display, including many items loaned to us by Bob Gale himself. Coach buses took fans from location to location, with everyone disembarking to take photos at Marty's house, Doc's house and many more.

TRAIN OF THOUGHT

The tour had one final stop – the train tracks in Oxnard, CA, the location of the DeLorean Time Machine's destruction in Part III when it is hit by a train. One lucky fan, who scoured the tracks for wreckage, found an actual (confirmed) fragment of the 'B' Time Machine's tail light, which had lain untouched for some 20 years. He has since had it made into a (very envied) necklace.

As the day ended, the high point began, with the DeLorean approaching along the train tracks. We had done what had only been done once before, recreating the 1885 look using authentic antique wheels, and we were driving a DeLorean down the very same stretch of track. It was almost too surreal. Then, the train signals activated, and it became completely surreal.

And we were only at day three... ■ TO BE CONTINUED...

DAVY CROCKETT

KING OF THE WILD FRONTIER

One of the 1950s' most popular TV shows spawned a hit single and a craze for raccoon-skin hats.

Born on a mountaintop in Tennessee,
Greenest state in the land of the free,
Raised in the woods so he knew ev'ry tree,
Killed him a bear when he was only three.
Davy, Davy Crockett,
King of the Wild Frontier!

In 1954, America's children hurried to their television sets to watch The Adventures of Davy Crockett, a TV series produced by Walt Disney. Fess Parker starred as the famous frontiersman, with Buddy Ebsen as co-star. The show's runaway success saw the TV episodes combined into a big-screen movie in 1955, and Davy Crockett and his world quickly became part of the cultural furniture of the Fifties.

A disc based on the show's theme song, The Ballad of Davy Crockett, recorded by Bill Hayes, topped the charts. Soon after Marty arrives in Hill Valley 1955, he passes a record store where the Davy Crockett single is promoted on a billboard. Also advertised is the song '16 Tons' ("You load 16 tons and what do you get? Another day older and deeper in debt...") a chart-topping hit for balladeer Tennessee Ernie Ford, who released his own version of Davy Crockett.

The Crockett craze also made an impact on fashion when replicas of Crockett's raccoon-skin cap were produced. When Marty is invited to dinner with the Baines family, eldest son Milton is wearing his Davy Crockett hat at the table. ■

QUICK FACTS!

PIONEER HERO

David 'Davy' Crockett is one of America's great folk heroes. Born in 1786 in Tennessee, he became renowned as a pioneer and storyteller. He later became a soldier and politician and represented his home state in the House of Representatives. He supported the American settlers in Texas who were fighting for independence – Texas was then a province of Mexico. He died in 1836 at the Battle of the Alamo, near San Antonio, Texas, in a fortified former mission that was besieged by the Mexican army.
